

Gender Identity and Attractionality (GIAA) for Grad Students

This Gender Identity and Attractionality Support Group (GIAA) will address life and relational issues related to romantic and sexual attraction, sexual identity, and gender identity for graduate students, particularly LGBTQIA+ (including questioning) students.

Topics are based on student interests and could include diversity of relationship styles; exploring identity and identity development; trust and connections; dealing with heterosexism, cissexism, racism and internalized homophobia and transphobia; dating and dating technology; attraction and romance; family dynamics; faith and identity; balancing academics with life; intersectional identities.

Group Facilitator:
Ginny Blakely (no pronouns), LMSW

WEDNESDAYS

2-3:30 P.M. ET

.....

HIPAA-Compliant Zoom

.....

Group begins September 15.

.....

Looking for peer support
in regard to sexuality, gender, relationships and friendships in a space where you can be open about who you are — whether you have figured it out or not?

Register:

Email Ginny Blakely at blakelyv@msu.edu for more info, pre-screening and registration information.

